Trout Farm Decision of Public Inquiry

The appeal by Ben Vorlich Trout against Stirling District Council's failure to grant planning permission for a Trout Farm at Dall Farm, Ardeonaig, was considered at a public inquiry in Killin on 14/15 May. The decision of the inquiry has now been made public and it is that the appeal be dismissed. The main reasons for dismissing the appeal were considered to be: probable pollution of the water in Dall Bay, an area of poor flushing; distinct risk of a harmful impact on the salmon runs, with consequent adverse effects on fishings which contribute to the local economy; some risk to crannogs in the bay from bacteria; the fish farm complex would be a conspicuous intrusion into an attractive and important landscape and would evoke an adverse reaction in most of the tourists who come to Loch Tay for its scenic qualities.

The inquiry concluded that the above disadvantages outweighed the modest contribution to local employment

Whatever Happened to our Community Development Plan?

Stirling District Council has decided that The Community Development Plan for Killin and Ardeonaig, prepared by Lesley Rogers, should be included as part of the broader-ranging Stirling District-Wide Local Plan.

Early last year, work was carried out on a community development plan for Killin and Ardeonaig. While some of the issues identified related to particular local concerns, the District Council felt that many were common to the rest of the district

The statutory District-Wide Local Plan is currently being re-drafted to take account of changes to the new structure plan, Central 2000. With specific Killin and Ardeonaig settlement plans included, the revised District-Wide Local Plan will carry more weight than the community development plan.

According to District Council forward planning officer, Lesley Rogers "Issues common to most of the rural area include local housing needs, transport and job creation. As such, they're more appropriately dealt with as part of the District-Wide Local Plan.

More localised concerns, like parking around the Bridge of Dochart, for instance, will be covered by specific settlement plans attached to the District-Wide Plan.

Within the next few months, residents of Killin and Ardeonaig will have an opportunity to comment on the plans, and detailed information will be available at the Library.

Meanwhile, anyone wishing to know more about the Stirling District-Wide Local Plan, should contact Lesley Rogers on Stirling 79000 extension 2142.

So, the famous Community Development Plan for Killin has at last surfaced (see page 1). Readers will remember how the Killin News featured it on the front page of Issue No.2 June 1991!

Now it turns out that it will be merely a feature of the Stirling District-Wide Local Plan, which is currently being re-drafted to take account of the new (Regional) structure plan, Central 2000. We give up!

Two to three years of detailed plans, hundreds of pages - and yet little or nothing seems to happen, except lots of rewarding work for many officials in the two tiers of local government. And one curious new phrase crops up, certain things "are more appropriately covered by specific settlement plans attached to the District wide plans".

So Killin is now a "settlement"! We thought we were a village with an interesting and rich history - but the planners think differently!

Trout Farms

We note the result of the public inquiry into the proposal for a trout farm at Dall Farm, Ardeonaig (page 1). We feel that a just decision has been made, not because we support one side rather than another The Killin News tries not to take sides. But we are convinced that the great majority of people in the village, and various organisations and societies, did not wish to see this development take place.

Having attended the public inquiry, we saw how a great deal of time was given over to a very detailed and careful examination of the issues involved; everybody's point of view was considered; advocates and solicitors questioned the witnesses in detail. The judgement therefore was made after very careful examination of the evidence, not lightly made. We were impressed by the care taken by the Scottish Office Reporter.

Editor's Note Issue No. 10 will be published in September and will, of course, feature the Agricultural Show. Articles, letters, advertisements, should be lodged with us before the end of August. Keep your copy coming in.

McLaren High School Board

Following the decision of the School Board of McLaren High School to hold some of their meetings outwith Callander, the first was held in Killin School on 20th May.

The Chairperson Mrs Kate Taylor introduced the members of the Board to parents and spoke briefly on the duties and aims of the School Board. Mr Roger Bedwell, the local parent member of the Board, spoke on some of the problems that arose due to the size of the school catchment area and the fact that compared with Callander pupils, their school day could be up to two hours longer.

There was a general discussion with parents on the problems of transport and the Rector, Mr Hugh Mathie, spoke on the matter of pupil behaviour on the buses, especially the service to Killin, which had resulted in complaints from other bus passengers. The meeting was assured that the school took this matter very seriously and that pupils reported for rowdy behaviour would be dealt with.

Mr Bedwell said that if any parents from the Lochearnhead-Killin-Crianlarich area wished to have any matter raised by the School Board they could contact him.

The meeting ended with refreshments.

Rural Stirling Housing Association

It was almost standing room only when Mr John McConnon, Director of Rural Stirling Housing Association, addressed a public meeting in Crianlarich Village Hall on 12th May.

McConnon told how Mr the Association came about in response to a need for low cost housing, mainly for renting, and explained how it was funded and how houses were allocated, with the emphasis on local needs. Houses were planned for Ballechroisk in Killin and Mansefield in Tyndrum and the builders should be on site in both places by late summer. Questions from the audience elicited further information about tendering, cost and design of houses and assurance that local people would have priority.

Dr Mairi Maccoll, who chaired the meeting, thanked Mr McConnon for his interesting and helpful talk and looked forward to a possible return visit from him nearer the completion date of the houses.

Killin and District Sport and Leisure Club

The Inaugural Annual General Meeting of the Club was held on Wednesday 24th June in the Lesser McLaren Hall. Although notices were displayed in the village, it was disappointing that only 12 members turned up; most of these were members of the Management Committee!

Since one of the items on the agenda was the election of a new management committee, the present Chairman, David Osier, had some difficulty. In the end the new management committee looks very like the old one.

There may yet be added to this committee, a member or members representing other parts of the district which the Sports Club caters for - such as Lochearnhead and Crianlarich.

Names will be given in next issue of Killin News. The Treasurer, Stan Mudd, presented a balance sheet and so far the finances of the Club look very healthy.

(Rumour has it that Killin people tend not to attend AGM's so as not to be elected to a committee).

Killin School Sporting Events and Activities

Another successful sports day was held jointly with Crianlarich School, in Breadalbane Park, on the afternoon of 3rd June; hill race, long jump and high jump having been held previously.

This time Lochay won the day. Numerous and varied races included, as usual, special events for pre school children, mums and dads.

The final week of term was a special activities week. Monday events were potted sports and a lunch time barbecue in Breadalbane Park. Balloon keepers were kept on the run by gusts of wind, but could not prevent them bursting in the heat.

Even funnier were the welly boot throwing, three-legged races and a "Charlie Chaplin race". Bingo and Beetle on Tuesday morning were followed by a visiting puppet show, 'Tom Thumb", with realistic special effects. A treasure hunt on Wednesday finished at the head of Loch Tay, with a bonus for P.7 who travelled there from Firbush in a fast rescue boat.

More team games followed in the afternoon. Many kilted children attended the Scottish day on Thursday, collaborating on a paper replica Loch Ness Monster. Singing, and the Highland Fling completed the day. At a church service on Friday the school selected the hymns, after which the children dressed for a colour parade, and some were awarded prizes.

The verdict on the week was "fabulous", "great", "fantastic", "brilliant" to quote a P.7 pupil. But high spirits reached a climax at 1.30pm. as a water fight broke out among pupils and certain members of staff. Some very wet people went home.

But it was also a sad occasion for Mrs Inglis and her class of 11 pupils, as their last day together at Killin School.

The end of the summer term sees also the end of another successful year's activities for the Parent Teacher Association. This year we tried to have a variety of activities, social, educational and fundraising. We held a very successful Ceilidh, a coffee morning and Book Fair, and in May had our sponsored litter pickup. Several members of the PTA took a party of children from P5-P7 to Ardeonaig Outdoor Centre to test them on the "adventure course".

We have also helped organise a barbecue at the school together with the Regional Catering Service. A visit from a dental hygienist gave us some insight into dental care. The PTA has also, with the valued help of PC Donaldson, Mrs Fiona Kennedy and Mrs Helen Sinclair, organised cycling proficiency classes for the older pupils.

Thanks are due to all those who have given up time, money, and energy to support the work of the PTA, which we hope is appreciated as a bridge between parents and the school as well as an extra fundraising mechanism.

Our AGM is set for September 16th and we will be looking to recruit new Committee members. No formal qualifications required!

Community Council

The Community Council met in the village hall, Crianlarich, on Thursday 11th June.

Apart from the usual long list of small but important problems affecting the three villages, the main part of the meeting was given over to discussing our problems with Mr D Sinclair, Chief Executive, Central Regional Council.

The Chairman had invited Mr Sinclair to attend a meeting because we wished to find out why so many matters raised with the Council took so long to be dealt with or were not dealt with at all. Consequently Mr Sinclair listened to a list of complaints and problems affecting Tyndrum, Crianlarich and Killin.

Our Council was pleased with his honest and straightforward response, apologising for failures of action where appropriate, explaining why some problems took so long, and at times pointing out that with resources hard pressed any costly action could be delayed.

However, he did undertake to look closely into a number of matters affecting the three villages and promised action; these were items such as the growing problem of bus and car parking in Killin; landscaping the traffic island at Tyndrum; sewage problems in Tyndrum and Killin; road hazards in Crianlarich; flooding in front of Killin Church.

He also promised to see if our Council's communications with the Region could be more speedily acknowledged. The Chairman thanked Mr Sinclair for giving up his time to attend our meeting and for answering our questions in so straightforward a manner.

She expressed the hope that in future our dealings with Central Region would be greatly improved.

A Question of Cheese

A mere white settler with a Yorkshire name, I write these lines, alas, to Scotland's shame. When to a Killin store one goes for cheese, One name alone the puzzled buyer sees. No true Scots product meets his questing gaze;

Always the same unpatriotic phrase!

For 'Scottish Cheddar', found on every shelf, Invites disbursement of his hard-earned pelf -A product, doubtless from some Scottish glen,

Named from a place which nurtures Englishmen!

(Forgive the pun I am about to forge:

Why should Scots people seek a Cheddar Gorge?)

Shall Bruce regret the land he came to save? Shall martyred Wallace turn within his grave? Not thus, on Flodden's sanguinary field, Did Scots so cravenly to England yield! Did they eat Cheddar sandwiches before They spilled their life blood on Culloden Moor?

Degenerate race, devoid of proper pride, Who your own true traditions have denied! Would you eat English haggis? Would you take Sassenach whisky with your Angus steak? Besides, the stuff you label 'Scottish Cheddar'

Ought to be harder, tangier and redder. Poor substitute for Danish or for Dutch, It looks like household soap, and tastes as such.

Arise, ye Scots! refuse such trash to buy. Reject what manufactures supply Unless upon their packets they proclaim A genuinely Caledonian name.

With Orkney, Islay, let your tables groan; Be Scottish brands by Scottish titles known. And, just occasionally, have for sale Cheeses from Cheshire or from Wensleydale.

Recollections

Among many interesting tilings in Glenlochay is a rock at the river side of west of Kenknock known locally as "Clach na Scatan" - the Herring Stone. There is nothing spectacular about it but the name recalls the days of bartering when west coast fishermen brought herring to be exchanged for potatoes from Loch Tayside. On one occasion the herring was sour and got scattered against the rock, It is not recorded what happened to the potatoes.

On the south side of Loch Tay there was a good sized village known as Cloichran. before the clearances there was a school. I met a man McMillan by name who was one of the last 12 scholars in the school. He would be in his 60's at the beginning of the Second World War. This village had a meal mill known as Am Muilen Dhu and had a gaelic song written about it. It was five miles east of Killin and the song was in the Killin Collection by Major Stewart, Tigh Duin, now the Youth Hostel. It had a hearing well.

Church News

The Rev. David McNaughton wishes to draw attention to a number of matters of interest to the people of Killin and, of course, visitors. First perhaps is the chance to see for a limited period the three volume hand written Bible on display in the church.

This massive task was undertaken by the people of Scotland, and beautifully done, in aid of Bible printing in China. It was carried out by parishes all over the country in association with the National Bible Society for Scotland.

He would also like to invite both visitors and local people to visit Morenish Chapel or to join in public worship there on the first Sunday of the month until October, at 3.00pm. The chapel described as "this gem of Scotland" is situated about three miles east of Killin on the Aberfeldy road

Of interest too is the relatively new St Fillan's Prayer Room in the church. This is "a place of great peace, beauty and simplicity". The outside door is left open throughout the year. You are warmly invited to come and pray or simply meditate.

The Mermaid Falls?

Where the River Dochart divides into a number of channels opposite the Old Mill at the Dochart Bridge, there is a very unusual geological phenomenon, in that, in the second channel across the river from the mill lade, the action of the water on pebbles has worn the rock channel into the beautiful form of a woman or maid.

Now when the salmon negotiate this channel the "maid has a tail so perhaps an appropriate name would be the "Mermaid Falls".

Why this channel in the bedrock should have been filled with broken rock and boulders is a mystery to me, rock and boulders which incidentally, stopped a process which had gone on for many thousands of years to form the shape in the bedrock now visible.

Could it have been the St Fillan's Christian Congregation who covered the female form? He is reputed to have preached there, or perhaps the water bailiffs of old did it in order to prevent the villagers taking the odd salmon which might get stuck in the bottom pot hole? Or was it the poachers who did it to impede the salmon's progress up the river. I should be interested to hear from anyone who could throw lighten the matter.

Dear Sir

Your March Edition mentioned Glenlochav and the local School in the glen. It served quite large and, at that time, populous area; but there were children, living at the extreme west end of the glen who were too remote from the school to attend it.

One such was my late grandfather (also Donald MacNab) who was bom in Balquhidder in 1863 but whose family moved shortly after to Batavaime (on some maps Badvaim) which is beyond Kennock in Glenlochay and is, as far as I'm aware, no longer occupied.

He was the oldest often children. I don't know about the education of the others but he went from Batavaime over the hills at the west of the glen down to Auchlyne to cross the Dochart there; then east to Lix Toll before going over Glen Ogle to Lochearnhead where he lived with his grandmother Mrs Anna McFarlane and attended school there. How frequently he made the journey I am not sure though I believe it was done on a weekly basis.

By the time my own father, Duncan, was born in 1900 the family had moved to Tirarthur so that his walk to school was a mere stroll by comparison. However, he did have to deliver milk to the railway cottages at the Pier en route. He never did say whether he then took the short-cut up the railway track or went by Finlarig and the old Black Bridge.

Incidentally, one rather mind-boggling fact! My great grandmother, while living at Batavaime would, on occasions, walk to Killin and back to buy a few things in which they were not selfsufficient.

Scottish Ambulance Service Motherwell

Dear Sir

Ambulance Resources - Killin

I read with interest the report by] Sutherland on Ambulance Service resources in Killin. I wonder if I might adjust some of the information slightly in order to give your readers the up-to-date position.

The third member of staff has now been appointed and embarks on his training course at our National Training Centre in Glasgow on Monday 22nd June, providing he successfully completes the course, he will commence duties at Killin Ambulance Station on September 14th this year.

Having three members of staff at Killin will mean a double-crewed ambulance available for 16 hours a day, while the night shift will continue to be a single-crewed vehicle due to the very low incidence of calls.

I am sure that residents in and around Killin will welcome this increase in service and I know the high standard obtained by Norma and Jock will be maintained and increased by the new member of staff.

Yours faithfully

S D Jelfs Operations Director Forth Valley & Lanarkshire

Future of Stirling Resource Centre?

Stirling District Council has been reviewing the operation of its Resource Centre, which designs and prints The Killin News, and is making some changes. The staff of the Centre consequently wish to make the following statement:

"The Resource Centre is being dismembered from August. The number of staff will have been halved. A number of services will start to become unavailable shortly:-

The Centre will be known as the "Community Resource Centre". The Information Officer and Receptionist will remain, as will two Graphic Designers. It is likely that they will do less work for the Community as they may have to do more Council work. The Printer will be part-time only. A review of graphic costs may mean higher charges to users. Services will begin to run down from late July.

We will do our best to keep the full service going for as long as possible. We would like to thank all the people who have helped us and supported us over the last six successful years".

The next issue of the paper (September) will feature hopefully the views of the District Council on this matter.

The Green Scene

The Green Team are back in action with some fresh faces on the scene and making the most of the fine weather. They have been looking for the places where frogs and toads breed around Killin.

One popular area, behind the school, had been drained this year so there was no spawn there. To make up for this we are hoping to build a big new pond in the school garden so that next year the frogs can lay their eggs in it. Fingers crossed that Stirling District Council will provide a grant for the materials.

The Team have also been looking at the wildlife in the River Lochay and how animals blend into their surroundings (although they didn't quite master the an of silence themselves!).
